

Academic discipline "Economics of innovative enterprise" refers to vocational and practical training.

The subject of the discipline of the economic mechanism of functioning of the innovative enterprise, the formation and use of its potential in order to optimize economic performance. Knowledge of the subject - the acquisition of practical skills in the implementation of economic activities of the innovative enterprise, necessary for each specialist, working in production and nonproduction areas.

The purpose of discipline.

Formation of the special knowledge and practical skills in the area of performance analysis and planning of economic and industrial activity of the enterprise, the innovative, taking into account factors external and internal environment of its functioning.

Objective: To study the theoretical and practical foundations of economic processes in innovative enterprises, the acquisition of knowledge on the economic system of innovative enterprise, its evolution and the present state; familiarization with the simplest model used in the economic and innovative research at the enterprise level; the ability to independently develop major sections of a business plan.

Having learned the subject, the specialist should:

Know:

- the nature of the basic concepts of economics and how to use them in the activities of innovative enterprises.
- value and ways to improve the efficiency of innovative enterprises and their divisions;
- basics of modeling the efficiency of innovative enterprises in the transition to an innovative model of economic development;

To be able to:

- to combine theoretical knowledge and practical skills for effective implementation of innovative enterprise;
- calculate the basic economic indicators of innovative enterprises and to analyze them.
- finding ways to use the reserves to improve the effectiveness of the innovative enterprises.

An experience:

- to identify alternatives to innovation in enterprises;
- on the application of acquired knowledge for problem solving on the implementation of innovative projects in the enterprise.